ANNIVERSARY

Blind date leads to 60 years of marriage

Walter and Edythe Tait met on a blind date at UCLA more than 60 years ago. She was a freshman, he a senior and their first date was to Walter's Senior Ball.

That dance was the preliminary to their 60 years of marriage, and even now they keep dancing and are members of all three ballroom dance clubs in Leisure World.

Married on March 16, 1933 at Central Union Church in Honolulu, they celebrated their 60th anniversary with relatives and close friends.

The have lived in Leisure World for 20 years moving here after Walter retired as manager of training and development for Standard Oil of California in the San Francisco Bay area.

After retiring he became an international management consultant and worked with the U.S. State Department, Aid to Developing Countries, International Executive Service Corps and various federal agencies. He is now a volunteer executive with the Orange County Chapter of the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORES). He has travelled to 136 countries during work and vacations.

Twenty-seven years ago Edythe left her high school and college teaching career to become a full-service stockbroker and insurance agent. She still works full time with Linsco/Private Ledger in Laguna Hills. She also teaches classes in investment and money management at Saddleback and Orange Coast Colleges.

Walter also teach college classes in photography, slide presentations and public speaking.

They both are members of numerous Leisure World groups.

The couple has one daughter and two grandchildren.
